Max Total Drawdown	4% trailing drawdown
Max Daily Profit	2% of starting balance

Minimum Trading Days	10 days

Core Trading Conditions explained:

7.1 Leverage

"Leverage" means the ratio between the trader's account equity and the notional value of positions opened in the trading account. Leverage allows the trader to control a larger market exposure with a smaller capital amount. The leverage level applicable to each account shall be as specified in the challenge or funded account parameters.

7.2 Maximum Daily Loss

"Maximum Daily Loss" means the maximum amount of equity or balance (including unrealised losses) that a trader may lose within a single trading day, as calculated from the daily starting balance or equity at 00:00 platform time. Exceeding this limit constitutes a breach of the trading rules and results in termination of the account.

7.3 Maximum Total Drawdown

"Maximum Total Drawdown" means the maximum allowable overall reduction in the trader's account equity or balance (including both realised and unrealised losses) from the highest recorded account balance or equity. If this level is breached at any time during the trading period, the account shall be deemed in violation of the trading rules.

7.4 Maximum Daily Profit

"Maximum Daily Profit" means the maximum profit permitted to be realised within a single trading day, as determined by the firm for the purpose of ensuring consistent and controlled trading behaviour. Exceeding this amount may result in review or suspension of trading privileges, depending on the firm's discretion. CONSISTENCY RULE (Max 2% Profit per Day) The aim of the rule is:

- To ensure sustainable and disciplined trading, a maximum of 2% profit per day is permitted on all account types.
- The purpose of this rule is to encourage steady performance and prevent high-risk, short-term trading behaviour.
- Traders who exceed this limit may be flagged for review, and repeated violations may lead to disqualification.

- Consistency is evaluated by comparing daily profitability, trade volume, and risk exposure across the trading period.

7.5 Profit Target

“Profit Target” means the specified percentage or monetary gain that the trader must achieve within the trading period to successfully complete a challenge phase or qualify for a funded account. The profit target must be reached in accordance with all other trading rules and conditions.

7.6 Minimum Trading Days

“Minimum Trading Days” means the minimum number of distinct trading days on which at least one executed trade must occur in order for the challenge or verification phase to be considered valid. Failure to meet this requirement shall render the trading period incomplete.

7.7 Trading Period

“Trading Period” means the total duration, expressed in calendar days, during which the trader may execute trades under the challenge or funded account. The trading period begins on the date of account activation and ends upon expiry of the defined term or completion of the applicable phase.
